Attachments: SBBB01_0004TMA01.pdf

Hi [Redacted],

We have tracked down an email question to the Bristol Road Safety Team from a Forensic Collision Investigator with the Avon and Somerset Police.

The project team passed the following back to the road safety team on 4 February 2018. I do not have a record of when that email was subsequently passed on to the Investigator.

"During the course of the avtm works, the Ashton road overbridge depicted in the below mentioned picture [that the Investigator sent to the Council] has never been closed; neither has the footbridge leading off the A370 Brunel Way overbridge. This footbridge formed an intrinsic part of the pedestrian diversion route whilst the footpath in Ashton Gate Underpass was closed.

As stated in my previous correspondence, the only closures in place at the REDACTEDe of the accident was the footpath in Ashton Gate underpass & the staircase(s) leading down to the same. This is shown on "Forest Traffic signals DWG SBBB01/0004TMA01".

The pedestrian closure was been in place since approximately May 2015 & was subsequently removed on the 1st December 2017."

Kind regards,

Hi [Redacted],

Can I speak to you about this please?

<https://www.bristolpost.co.uk/news/bristol-news/brake-crash-drive-nathan-jenkins-1966880>

We were told at the inquest yesterday the road under the flyover had been closed for MetroBus works for about two years until December 2017 when it was reopened days after Nathan died.

Can you let me know if that was the case and if any work was going on on November 24/25/26 last year? I understand Karin Smyth is speaking to your office about it as well.

Hi [Redacted],

Here is the response for this one:

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "Like any responsible organisation we always consider risk and professional advice will usually consider a 'worst case scenario' as part of the process. Citing one short paragraph from a leaked 166 page document takes this well out of context."

Hi [Redacted] and [Redacted],

I have managed to get sight of one of the below-the-line arena docs regarding the council's resilience to potential legal action from Arena Island Ltd.

The par I am interested in is as follows -

“If a claim is made, damages claimed are likely to be for abortive costs to date, loss of profits and costs. Plainly we cannot know the costs incurred to date, but we might assume these will run to £100,000's. Loss of profits will be based on their business plan. From the information we have, this could be in the region of £Ms. Costs – again, if the action were to proceed to court this would likely run into £100,000's. A successful claim could therefore run into millions.”

Would it be possible to get a comment on this as soon as possible?

Best wishes,

Hi all,

I have received a odd email from [REDACTED] re Bristol Arena.

He claims to be in contact with [REDACTED] - organiser of Live Aid with Sir Bob - who says he has spoken with a "global arena operator" who is willing to privately back an arena on Temple Island.

[REDACTED] is urging Marvin to contact him to find out more details.

That is literally all I know at this moment - I have gone to [REDACTED] to ask for more info. Would it be possible to get a comment from either the council or Marvin on this one?

I am heading in to the office late today (Tues) to catch up on sleep. Please can you forward any response to [Redacted], [Redacted] and [Redacted] (all cc'd in) as they will be on desk. My deadline is asap!

Hi [Redacted] and [Redacted],

I have managed to get sight of one of the below-the-line arena docs regarding the council's resilience to potential legal action from Arena Island Ltd.

The par I am interested in is as follows -

"If a claim is made, damages claimed are likely to be for abortive costs to date, loss of profits and costs. Plainly we cannot know the costs incurred to date, but we might assume these will run to £100,000's. Loss of profits will be based on their business plan. From the information we have, this could be in the region of £Ms. Costs – again, if the action were to proceed to court this would likely run into £100,000's. A successful claim could therefore run into millions."

Would it be possible to get a comment on this as soon as possible?

Best wishes,

[Redacted]

Hi [Redacted],

I have a quick request about the Urban Living piece on your website.

Would you be able to attribute the comment to Cllr Beech please? When I sent it back with the press release last week - I think I thought the same article might include some of that. It's Nicola's subject area so does make sense it comes from her. My fault for not making that clear but would be grateful if you could update.

Not sure if you planned to do anything else? I couldn't see a link to the consultation on the article - do you mind adding that please? Or is there an issue with adding links within BL articles?

Also, I wondered if you could consider using some images of the other developments the Urban Living document suggests are good examples. Just to add balance alongside the others. Basically Wapping Wharf and Paintworks are what we've referred to before. WW mentioned in the quote from us too.

Are you at city hall later?

Hi [Redacted],

Here is the comment and I've attached the news release as well. Sorry for the delay.

Re the question on a clear promise - our planning officers are convinced this was in reference to the moving of the locational guidance to the Local Plan rather than an emphasis on tall buildings. Addressed this in the final par in our statement below.

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said:

"The Urban Living approach establishes appropriate planning guidance for developers and planners on higher density, quality developments. It will eventually sit alongside the city's updated Local Plan, which contains the policies used to help determine applications.

"The document features 20 quality standards to help improve accommodation for our future residents.

"One element of the Urban Living guidance addresses tall buildings. It is important that we strengthen our planning guidance to ensure we learn from successful developments and don't repeat the mistakes from the past. Wapping Wharf is a good example of what we would like to see more of.

"We have considered all the responses we received from the formal consultation before updating the SPD. One of the changes included moving policy-specific elements such as locational guidance to the Local Plan."

On the point below re 'policy on tall buildings' - this isn't a policy on tall buildings. The Urban Living SPD is planning guidance on density and tall buildings is one element. Policies are included in the Local Plan and that's currently under review - it's a lengthy process.

Hi [Redacted],

I hope you are well and looking forward to the weekend?

I have had another call from [Redacted] of the Bristol Campaign Against Tower Blocks.

He is calling for a referendum on the latest draft SDP. He claims the policy on tall buildings could open the floodgates for more to be built in the city, changing the skyline forever.

He also claims there was "unambiguous rejection of the new policy on tall buildings by 85 per cent of respondents during the statutory consultation".

And "a clear promise by the planning officers at a June 13 Harbourside verbal presentation that the emphasis on tall buildings would be taken out of the SPD and deferred until the later City Plan."

Would it be possible to get a response to this? I am away from the office now (yay), so please can you pop any response over to my news editors [Redacted] and [Redacted] [Redacted] (cc'd in).

Our deadline is 11am tomorrow (Thurs).

All the best,

On the point below re 'policy on tall buildings' - this isn't a policy on tall buildings. The Urban Living SPD is planning guidance on density and tall buildings is one element. Policies are included in the Local Plan and that's currently under review - it's a lengthy process.

Hi [Redacted],

I hope you are well and looking forward to the weekend?

I have had another call from [Redacted] of the Bristol Campaign Against Tower Blocks.

He is calling for a referendum on the latest draft SDP. He claims the policy on tall buildings could open the floodgates for more to be built in the city, changing the skyline forever.

He also claims there was "unambiguous rejection of the new policy on tall buildings by 85 per cent of respondents during the statutory consultation".

And "a clear promise by the planning officers at a June 13 Harbourside verbal presentation that the emphasis on tall buildings would be taken out of the SPD and deferred until the later City Plan."

Would it be possible to get a response to this? I am away from the office now (yay), so please can you pop any response over to my news editors [Redacted] and [Redacted] [Redacted] (cc'd in).

Our deadline is 11am tomorrow (Thurs).

All the best,

Hi [Redacted]

Further to your query below Marvin's asked me to send the following on to you:

Marvin Rees, Mayor of Bristol said: "I had agreed to attend scrutiny until councillors called for a Full Council meeting on the same day, introducing a new REDACTED pressure which requires preparation. Council officers are open to attending scrutiny wherever this is possible, although commitments such as pre-existing holidays mean not everyone can attend short-notice, previously unscheduled items.

"Scrutiny sets its own work programme and is responsible for resourcing the amount of work that it chooses to take on. It has already spent nearly 10 hours on the arena and one of its commissions was briefed on the housing company proposals. The Chair has chosen to be ambitious in scope and impose additional items on his meeting. That's up to him, but it comes with the need to dedicate REDACTED to reading the papers. Because of the Bank Holiday weekend members have had longer to review the papers than normal and will have had well over a week. I'm not prepared to delay REDACTED decisions just to enable unplanned scrutiny items to move at a leisurely pace."

Many thanks

Hi [Redacted] and [Redacted],

I hope you are both well?

I've just had a message from Geoff Gollop who is kicking off about scrutiny.

He claims OSMB have not been given enough REDACTED to scrutinise the 15 items on the agenda ahead of cabinet on Tuesday.

In particular he claims the Arena, Bristol Energy and Bristol Housing Co are "complex and controversial" and need a lot of REDACTED spent on them.

He says councillors have not been given enough REDACTED to read all the papers and is frustrated that Marvin and senior officers won't be available to attend the meeting.

He claims Marvin holds the scrutiny process in "contempt".

Would it be possible to get a response to this?

My deadline is 5pm.

Best wishes,

Hi [Redacted],

Here is the response for this one:

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "The Equality Act 2010 requires us to consider how our proposals may affect people with the 'protected characteristics' defined within it. These include race, gender, sexuality, disability and more. We must also seek to promote equality and foster good community relations.

"One of the many ways we do this are Equality Impact Assessments, which are very common for important decisions. These consider benefits, impacts and mitigations to help inform our decision making. They don't dictate what decision we make, but demonstrate that we have considered equalities fully and properly. Officers begin these assessments at the start of almost any REDACTED project and they develop and change over REDACTED as our proposals and understanding of their potential effects are developed."

Hi [Redacted],

Many thanks for chatting with me.

The arena piece I am working on today relates to page nine of the Equality Impact Assessment Form for building an arena on Temple Island. This is found in appendix E of the reports -

<https://democracy.bristol.gov.uk/documents/s24708/Appendix%20E-%20Bristol%20Arena%20EqIA%20updated%20Mar18%20v.2%20CM%20signed%20QA1.pdf>

Basically the report states that gay people, ethnic groups and women are at higher risk of attacks if the council goes ahead with the city centre arena.

The author goes on to state there are mitigating factors which can be put in place - such as CCTV and lighting - to reduce the risks.

Presumably Equality Impact Assessments are fairly standard, but I don't recall ever seeing assessments go in to detail about potential sexual, gender or race attacks before. Is this commonplace?

Will the same form of risk assessment be carried out for the alternative use development if/when it is further along the line?

How much weight is given to this form of assessment when making a final decision?

My deadline for this piece is 5.30pm.

Hi [Redacted]

Good to chat. As discussed sadly unlikely we can share any papers under embargo today, but still aiming for 5pm and I'll ask [Redacted] to give you a half-hour warning by text if/when we know they're going up.

I mentioned an open letter [Redacted] shared with Marvin yesterday. We understood from him it had gone to media and [Redacted] at BBC mentioned seeing it in passing when he interviewed Marvin yesterday - I haven't seen the original trail so don't know who he sent it to. Anyway, you guys might think it's worth using as a letter or story. Will leave it with you.

Cheers

Hi [Redacted]

We've had this open letter from REDACTED

REDACTED
Bristol
22 August 2018

Dear Sir

Inner City Development and the Arena

For thirty years as the leader of the Bristol Initiative and Chief Executive of the Chamber of Commerce, I was involved with many of the REDACTED improvements within Bristol.

The building of Cabot Circus, and the regeneration of the harbour waterfront are just two examples where the facilitation of private investment has transformed the City. I am passionately dedicated to the improvement of Bristol as a great City and for the benefit of all who live in and around it.

The current unfortunate politicisation of a location for an Arena as an isolated matter betrays the absolute need to be aware of and achieve the best uses for all of the limited land available. There are better uses for the land at Temple Meads and we have a golden offer for provision of an Arena elsewhere within the City and completely at the cost of the private sector.

I believe that, the current Mayor has performed well against difficult odds and has become an impressive leader. He has successfully for the moment dealt with the appalling challenges of reduced funding for local government.

However, the pressure for savings will continue relentlessly and the key Council responsibilities, including most importantly for child and adult care, will be a grinding problem for the public purse until a more realistic funding arrangement is secured. On this point alone, it is unthinkable that the Mayor should contemplate the use of over one hundred million pounds of public money to enable the building of an arena at Temple Meads. This highly desirable addition to the cultural provision for the City should and must be at the risk of private enterprise. The alternative location requires no such public intervention apart from the modest cost associated with a short railway link, which would be provided anyway from a different public purse and which would, in any case, be very helpful to the anticipated population in that area.

Decisions like these should be derived from a reduction of confusing nuances of opinion to the hard and salient facts and a clarity about the potential to misuse public money on vanity projects.

Yours sincerely

REDACTED

Hi [Redacted]

Here is the comment from Marvin on the L&G release.

Thanks,

[Redacted]

Marvin Rees, Mayor of Bristol said: "I welcome Legal & General sharing this vision for the site with the city – it provides another useful contribution as we move towards making a well-informed decision on the best use of Temple Island. We must make a decision which is evidence-based and best for the future of the city centre. L&G's vision for social inclusion and a greener use of the space is an interesting aspect which will need consideration. The proposal demonstrates that there are real options on the table, putting the city in a position of real strength when considering its future."

Apparently a cross party group of councillors have signed a letter calling for Marvin to allow them a free vote on where the arena should be located at the extraordinary full council meeting on Sept 3.

Would the council and/or Marvin comment on this?

Hi [Redacted]

With apologies for missing your deadline – and thanks for carrying Council’s previous comment in your latest piece – here is a brief response re the travellers at the MetroBus M2 site. We are expecting them to leave the area in the coming days

A spokesperson for Bristol City Council said:

“We are working with the police to agree the best course of legal action. In the meanREDACTEDe police officers are carrying out regular patrols of the route to enable driver training for the new m2 service to continue as planned.”

Hope you’re able to update the piece

With thanks and best wishes

Sorry, I should have said that was just for my info - I didn't need a quote!

It's just that I can't see the OSMB meeting listed for the 3rd on the council calendar. I have been having a few problems with it today tho, so it might just be my machine.

Can you confirm what REDACTEDe the meeting starts? Again, just for my diary! [Redacted]

Sent: 17 August 2018 15:28

Subject: RE: M2 media inquiries

Hi [Redacted]

This query is a bit of both of us.

The second part comes from the MetroBus team.

On the travellers, please attribute to BCC spokesperson as that relates to the council's work alongside the police in this situation.

Thanks,
[Redacted]

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said:

"The council and the police are aware of the travellers. The police will be talking to them today and we are expecting them to move on shortly."

Background from MetroBus:

The m2 metrobus service replaces the 903. The 903 Park & Ride service is currently subsidised by Bristol City Council. The m2 metrobus service takes a slightly different route because it is designed to be a commercial bus service that does not require revenue support from the council.

The new route supports existing, new and planned housing development and gives more people access to the service and public transport than the 903. Stops on the m2 route include Ashton Vale, Wapping Wharf where 324 new homes are currently being built and Ashton Gate near the existing housing development at Paxton Drive and where 190 homes are being built. The route also serves the Cumberland Basin where more new housing is planned and Spike Island where residents currently have very few bus services.

The m2 will provide much improved, high frequency connections to Cabot Circus, Temple Meads, Broadmead and the city centre for residents of Ashton Vale.

The nearest bus stop for passengers travelling to Harbourside on the m2 is Gaol Ferry Steps. From the bus stop it is a short walk of 700 metres to Millennium Square via the M Shed, Arnolfini and Pero's Bridge. For passengers returning to the Park & Ride from the Harbourside their nearest stop will be on Prince Street.

In the first two weeks of operations, First will be offering m2 customers discounted travel. All of First's day, season and group tickets will be accepted on the m2, allowing travel onto other services.

As the new metrobus service will be run on a commercial basis the council has had to withdraw its supported Park & Ride service as legally it cannot compete with a commercial service.

Subject: M2 media inquiries

Hi [Redacted], [Redacted], and the Metrobus team. Hope you are all well.

I've got a couple of queries regarding the M2 route - hopefully fairly minor things.

Firstly, and most immediately, is the question of the group of travellers who have set up camp on the route (the pavement/side track, I think) just south of the Silbury Road access point.

This might be a question for BCC rather than Metrobus, but clearly if they are there for a few weeks, then it could impact on the launch.

What's happening with asking them to move on?

Secondly, I've been contacted by a number of regular passengers on the 903 service.

They are not looking forward to M2 starting, or rather the 903 being discontinued.

They say many of them use the service from the Anchor Road stop (including many council employees) and said M2 is not an alternative option.

What is the advice Metrobus can give to those passengers? Where should they get off now, or what alternative service can they use?

Are there any discussions going on about an alternative provision from Long Ashton park and ride to Anchor Road/the north side of the harbour?

Hope these queries make sense.

Kind regards

Hi [Redacted],

Sorry for the delay on this, I've just had sign off on our response for this.

Please see below:

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "We currently have no evidence to suggest that the developer has deviated from their current planning permission.

"If a developer does change their plans and deviate from the restrictions of their planning permission, they must seek further approval from the council in order to continue. If they do not do this they could face formal enforcement action and be asked to remove or demolish any unapproved structures.

"If any residents have concerns about a breach of planning law they can report this to us with evidence for our enforcement team to investigate. You can find more information and report a live issue on our website: <https://www.bristol.gov.uk/planningenforcement>."

Let me know if you have any other questions.

Thanks for getting the comment about The REDACTEDs, Four Acres last night.

As I am sure you are aware, the property developers Litt brothers (Highridge Homes/Construction) are in dispute about retrospective planning applications regarding another housing site 131 Bridgwater Road where they built the houses bigger than they had been granted permission for.

I have been told that residents around REDACTED have made complaints to the council about the most recent housing development The REDACTEDs, saying the developers have deviated from what was permitted them in planning. I have it on good authority that BCC Planning Enforcement are now investigating these claims.

Would you be able to confirm that BCC is investigating these claims against the developer?

And can you provide a comment about this and this type of practice?

Hi [Redacted],

With reference to your email - I sent this to [Redacted] last month when the consultation was first launched. I can't give you a post consultation version of this as the officer I'd need to confirm that with is not available. But this should give you an idea of what this means.

The conservation area has been extended to protect the area's special characteristics - as per the release.

The appeal is in the hands of the planning inspectorate so you would need to speak to them about that.

uit volunteers to read in schools.

er 250 people from all across the city volunteered in 50 schools, but now sights are being set even higher. Bristol's Mayor Marvin ike sure there's a reading volunteer for every child who needs one and that means 300 additional volunteers are needed.

g sessions for volunteers interested in taking part will be held in central locations throughout the autumn on Thursday 6 Septembe
October and Wednesday 28 November and cover everything from helping children read for enREDACTEDyment to assessing a

She said: "I first started over seven years ago and REDACTEDyed t I now volunteer in two schools – Blaise Junior and Broomhill Juniors. I got involved because I have always loved reading and I used to read with my children when they were young. I feel strongly that learning to read is vital for all children, and I thought I could be of help.

I have a great sense of satisfaction to see the children making progress. I also love it when children I have helped in earlier years still come back to tell me how they are doing. It is good to have the REDACTEDy to get to know children individually. They all like to read in their own time; to read for pleasure, and some are keen to work their way through the reading scheme as quickly as possible. As a volunteer, I am happy to follow their lead. I want them to feel important and I want them to enjoy REDACTEDy having a bit of individual, and non - pressured, attention. Many experienced readers want to do well, and it is very gratifying to see them improving and knowing that I have helped in my own gentle way."

Headmaster at Broomhill school, Colin Thompson, obviously has a very high opinion of Sandra's contribution. He said: "Sandra has made so much difference by helping hundreds of our struggling readers to find enjoyment and success in their reading. The children have got to know her and she has brought a lot to the REDACTEDy they have with her. I cannot over-exaggerate the impact her regular support has."

ng is a Bristol City Council employee who volunteered with the programme in St Pius X School. He said: "I decided to volunteer aft it the link between poor literacy and REDACTEDr quality of life, which got me thinking about what I would have missed out on if n't ead well as a child.

I was apprehensive to be going back into a school environment, but I received some really good training to prepare me for what to expect. The teachers and staff were really supportive, which helped to get me and the other volunteers settled in to the schools.

in I worked with through the programme had a good grasp of reading techniques but struggle a lot with comprehension. This means that even though they are able to read, they often didn't understand what the stories were about. Throughout the 10 weeks I noticed an improvement in their ability to understand and remember the books that we were working through.

end the programme to anyone as the experience has been hugely rewarding. It has been completely different to my day DACTEDb, so it g to do something outside of my normal routine. It really is amazing what you can achieve with just one hour a ek."

Subject: Bristol Live query - social worker misconduct hearing

Morning,

It's [Redacted] here, from Bristol Live.

A Bristol City Council social worker is due to face a misconduct panel in London on September 3, after allegedly allowing his brother to use his work phone and keeping confidential information in an unsecured area.

His name is [REDACTED]. Details of the hearing and the allegations can be found here: https://www.hcpts-uk.org/hearings/listing/201809031000-final\_hearing-sw18901

We intend to report on the upcoming hearing today.

I am not sure if this is something the council would be in a position to comment on just yet, given the hearing has not taken place, but I wanted to flag it up and give you the opportunity to do so (just in case).

I am on REDACTED if you have any questions.

Kind regards,

Subject: Non payment of BID

Hello seen in a recent magistrates court register that the city council has complained about eight businesses not paying their portion of their BID charge.

Would it be possible to find out which BID area this applies to and which businesses have not paid?

In addition would it be possible to find out why this was taken to court, if only an extra 50p charge was applied to those involved?

Below is the excerpt from the court papers.

"Complaint for liability orders for non-payment of Business Improvement District Rate and costs for 8 defendants. In accordance with Part 3 of and Schedules 2 to 4 to the Non Domestic Rating.

"1 liability orders made. Costs of £0.50 added in each case."

Any guidance you can give would be greatly appreciated.

Would the end of play today give you enough REDACTED?

Kind regards

Hi there BCC press team

We've been to 138 Grosvenor Road, where there are lots of angry taxi cab drivers.

They said that earlier today some auctioneers and valuers and estate agent type people arrived and said they were checking out the building because BCC is auctioning off the building.

They have had no notice of this, and staged what sounds like some kind of protest or action against their presence.

I'm fairly sure it's pretty straightforward - the council owns the building and is selling it?

But confirmation of this and a statement about what is happening there, would be really appreciated.

Kind regards

Hi [Redacted]

Lots of items have exempt content but whether or not it goes in to an exempt session depends on what needs discussing. The main one which is mostly exempt is the BE Operational Plan.

In all cases we only clear the Chamber where necessary and everyone gets to come back to hear the decision.

Hi [Redacted],

I hope you are well on this sunny Friday?

I've been chatting with [Redacted] and he seems to think it is okay for us to have an embargoed copy of the cabinet report once it is signed off.

Do you guys have an eta on when this might be? [Redacted]

Thanks [Redacted].

From a procedural and constitutional position it looks pretty accurate to me – top job.

I know this stuff isn't always the easiest to wade through so if ever you need a chat about constitutional matters feel free to call.

Ah yes, I knew there was something else I was talking to you about.

Long and short of it is there's nothing like a list of major development opportunities like the type we discussed the other day. The Local Plan will have a list of sites identified as being part of the long term development strategy but the trouble is the current local plan is four years old and the new one is under review so no new list to share right now.

Hi [Redacted],

Sorry for the late reply, only just heard back from our Head of Collections.

He's game for a behind the scenes look but time is tight due to summer holidays etc. Earliest we could do is Tuesday 21 August between 11 and 12. You can have a tour of the collections and pick out some of the more unusual items to feature.

As discussed before we won't discuss the valuation of individual items but happy to talk in general terms about the collection valuation and could make reference to the assumed value of some of the collection's higher end items so long as those valuations are disassociated with the items featured in the piece.

Thanks

Sorry for the late reply, only just heard back from our Head of Collections.

He's game for a behind the scenes look but time is tight due to summer holidays etc. Earliest we could do is Tuesday 21 August between 11 and 12. You can have a tour of the collections and pick out some of the more unusual items to feature.

As discussed before we won't discuss the valuation of individual items but happy to talk in general terms about the collection valuation and could make reference to the assumed value of some of the collection's higher end items so long as those valuations are disassociated with the items featured in the piece.

Thanks

Hi REDACTED,

I have forwarded your email on to desk re the headline.

Apologies, my email to [Redacted] re the £135 figure is still in drafts from this morning - our servers are a bit crappy. See below. Would you like me to still send it over to him?

Hi [Redacted],

Sorry to send you another arena-related question, but I was wondering if you could clear something up?

In his latest blog post Marvin states that the Temple Island arena price has come down to £135million.

However, in the June scrutiny sessions Buckingham said they could guarantee the price would be £122million or lower. Has something changed?

Hi [Redacted]

Thanks for the extra details on AIL – you’ll have a statement imminently if it’s not already arrived.

On your earlier story - <https://www.bristolpost.co.uk/news/bristol-news/arena-filton-better-city-according-1900062> - Marvin does have a slight issue with the headline so was hoping you could pass on to whoever is in control of those nowadays. His point is that his blog is not advocating for a Filton arena, it is asking debating the best use of Temple Island (which is the actual decision the council will take; obviously it can’t ‘decide’ to have an arena at Filton). Would an alternative line be possible? Something like: ‘Why using Arena Island differently could be best for Bristol – according to Marvin Rees’? Appreciate you need the A word in there!

Also – who have you approached for clarity on the £135m figure cited? I can chase that up if you like?

Cheers

Hot off the press....

On the AIL statement:

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "We have worked actively with all stakeholders involved in the project; meeting or contacting AIL on a number of occasions at a senior level as well as maintaining ties at an operational level.

"We have worked with objectivity and impartiality in considering the future use of Temple Island. Our actions reflect normal business practice, particularly given the context of YTL's proposal being at an earlier stage of development and requiring an understanding of the details."

On the KL questions:

A spokesperson for Bristol City Council said: "The Mayor visited Kuala Lumpur in July as part of a West of England trade delegation, participating in an investment seminar and reception at the British High Commissioner's residence, where they were promoting the City Leap Energy prospectus and other key investment projects for the city.

"One of the four meetings held during the visit was a working lunch hosted and paid for by YTL, at which all delegates and officers were present."

Hi [Redacted],

Here's the open letter. Can I get a response from the council please? Thanks!

Dear Mayor of Bristol and Bristol MPs,

Marvin Rees
Darren Jones
Karin Smyth
Kerry McCarthy
Thangam Debbonaire

We are writing to you because we are very concerned about Bristol City Council's ("BCC") Special Educational Needs and Disabilities ("SEND") department. It is clear to us that they are under enormous, indeed unbearable, pressure and as a result are failing to meet the needs of children and young people in the city.

Following Freedom of Information requests, we have learnt that BCC have had 399 requests for statutory assessment for an Education Health Care Plan ("EHCP") so far this year. Compare this to a year ago, when in the whole of 2017 they received 442 such requests. Unsurprisingly this has led to long delays on decisions as to whether to assess, and further delays in issuing and reviewing EHCPs. For example, between September 2017 and July 2018 only 53% of annual reviews actually took place. Moreover, those EHCPs which are issued are frequently woefully inadequate and fall significantly below the standard which is to be expected of a binding legal document.

As you may be aware, Bristol – which was recently ranked 145th out of 152 Local Authorities in relation to children and young people – has amongst the highest permanent and fixed term exclusion rate in the country in both primary and secondary schools. Pupil Referral Units are full, and a number of parents that we are aware of do not have placements for their children for this coming academic year. Many such children have been without a placement for several months.

Whilst we are delighted that the High Court has quashed BCC's unlawful decision to remove £5million from the SEND budget, this is no guarantee of preventing future cuts, nor does it provide any additional money for BCC to spend on SEND. We note that Bristol City Council has very recently unveiled its Children's Charter in which it states,

"The rights and best interests of children and young people are a priority for decision makers in Bristol"

"Bristol Children's Charter applies to every single child without discrimination"

"Children have access to an education that develops their potential in both what they learn and who they become so that they have skills for both life and work."

"Children are supported to live in safe and healthy families as they grow up in a city that supports parent, carers and family members"

"We will invest in our resources so that we protect and provide for the most vulnerable children and young people in our city to reduce inequalities that exist."

We sincerely hope and expect that these aspirations translate into meaningful and concrete outcomes for children and young people with SEND and their families and carers in Bristol, otherwise the Charter itself becomes meaningless.

Our questions to you, our constituency MPs and elected Mayor, are this: what are you doing to ensure that Bristol's children and young people with SEND receive the provision to meet their needs to which they are legally entitled and within the statutory timescales? How are you going to hold BCC and central government which of course provides the delegated funding, to account to ensure that Bristol leaves behind its reputation as a city with poor outcomes for children with SEND?

Yours sincerely

Hi there BCC

[Redacted] is off for a couple of days having left this Arena bombshell and dived for cover. We've received this from Eleanor Combley, and obviously if we were to run it as an article in its own right, then it would be good to give BCC the opportunity to respond. I am not sure how the response to [Redacted] original story was sent in, but if I don't hear from you guys, then I will include the response to the first story, in this follow up in any case. Hope that makes sense

Kind regards

Hi [Redacted], [Redacted],

Leader of Bristol's Green Group, Councillor Eleanor Combley, has responded to the recent FOI revelations on the Bristol Arena below. Eleanor is happy for the statement to be used for the letters section, a stand-alone feature, or for quotes.

Green councillors will be looking into whether the matter should be brought before Bristol Council's Values and Ethics subcommittee, which examines conflicts of interest and reputational damage to the Council.

Statement from Cllr Eleanor Combley on Bristol Arena FOI revelations

"I try always to give people the benefit of the doubt, so I have tried to take Mayor Marvin Rees at his word when he claimed to be keeping an open mind over the location of Bristol's Arena. This week's revelations, however, don't seem to leave any more room for doubt.

"On March 23rd 2018 Mayor Rees stated in his blog, "let me be clear that the decision has not been made and we are building an evidence base". However two days earlier someone (whose name has been redacted from the FOI request) introduces himself to a meeting on Transport for the Filton Arena as the person who "has been appointed by BCC to prepare a statement of support for the Brabazon Arena project proposed by YTL." Why was the Mayor paying someone to make the case for this option, while at the same time claiming not to be committed to it? If there is some advocate for Temple Island working away for balance, we haven't seen any evidence of it, for example at the arena scrutiny meetings.

"On April 26th, in a chain of emails between BCC and YTL, an email states "we agreed that BCC would work with us on the sequential test... [which] will require the TQ option to have been eliminated." This implies the Council would be helping YTL to deal with the planning law which (recognising the value of city centre development) would rule out an arena at Filton while Temple Quarter still has a viable site. Interestingly, in the Mayor's next blog on the arena, in June 2018, he tries to shift the debate from talking about the arena location, and instead starts promoting alternative uses for Temple Island. If someone was looking for a way to eliminate the Temple Island option, taking the decision in September Cabinet to build something else on the site would certainly do the trick.

“All the evidence suggests that while the Mayor was telling the press, councillors and public that he would ‘make an unbiased decision with all the evidence’, he appears to be, behind the scenes, using tax payers’ money to employ someone to lobby for a private concern, and essentially sabotaging the existing Council Arena project. Taking this together with the hospitality he has received from YTL, I suspect that any decision the Mayor makes now will be tainted in the eyes of the public, and I have real concerns about how exposed this could leave the council to legal challenges. I think we now have to ask if the Mayor has a case to answer before the Council Values and Ethics committee.

“I really hope that I am wrong. I really hope that the Mayor is not predetermined, and is able to look at the evidence. I firmly believe that it should lead him to conclude, as did KPMG, 10 out of 11 members of Scrutiny, and a clear majority of all councillors, that a Temple Island Arena is deliverable, affordable, and the best option for the city.”

Marvin Rees, Mayor of Bristol in cabinet

CHECK AGAINST DELIVERY

The arena has been a point of interest for many years in the city...not just in the last two years. The council first looked at a plan for an arena back in the early 1990s and a number of administrations, including the LibDems and my predecessor failed to get it done. They failed because none of them got to grips with the financial challenges that an Arena posed.

An arena is not an easy development to make money from if you're the owner. That's exactly why the private sector has traditionally stayed away from them and many are built with public funding.

The model for the Temple Island Arena has been exactly that. And as is often the reality with politicians ...nobody has looked too closely at the spend of council tax-payers money and of course, costs and risks have always been more than politicians were ready to admit.

It's interesting isn't it that the most noise and the most outspoken critics are those that have failed and of course, my political opponents who just see an opportunity...

The Lib Dems made no progress whatsoever during their administration, but now claim it's a crucial impact for the city. well, then why didn't you build it or are you better at opposition noise than you were at getting stuff done?

The Greens care so little about public money they carried a motion to build the arena regardless of the cost and with no understanding of the risks attached to spending council tax payers money. These are the last people to be trusted with public money and even today, they continue to ask the wrong question and see a binary choice around location of an arena, still not understanding the primary questions around affordability and impact on the city's jobs and economic output. And the Green group is so out of step with Green Party ambitions, we can only conclude they are letting down their own supporters. So determined are they to use the arena to score political appoints and boost their own Mayoral campaign, they have not confronted the enormous carbon output of an arena, far in excess of any other type of comparable build. They have abandoned the 'small is beautiful' model that their supporters champion, for political gain. They have just demanded and stamped their feet for the £150 million to be spent, when we would have expected them to re-direct the investment in green projects...especially when we have introduced the leap prospectus – a once in a lifetime opportunity to reinvent the city's relationship with energy. We haven't seen or heard anything from them on that. And they have ignored the impact on air pollution... I have no idea what's going on with the Green group but they look and sound like Tories, not environmental activists.

The Lib Dems and the Greens just lack understanding...and have demonstrated their inability to lead or to be trusted with big decisions or with council taxpayers money.

The Conservatives on the other hand know better... and they have simply jumped on the bandwagon of political opportunism and they know they have. Privately, I suspect a number of the Conservative group agree with me... but they love a public argument and they won't miss the chance to create noise that may help their own political futures. Where they have lost sight of their own core values though, is simply backing a public sector spend project. I have never heard a Tory advocate public intervention over the free market, particularly where the market is offering a solution. This Conservative group too, in the name of opportunism, are letting their supporters down. If this isn't simple political opportunism, then they too have proved themselves unfit to represent the council tax payers of Bristol. This fits with the fact that the black hole of finance we were left with, was as a result of the mess overseen by a Conservative Cabinet lead for Finance.

And then there's my predecessor... George Ferguson, who is 'fighting to the death' (his words) to save his greatest ever vanity project. His claim that he 'wishes he had signed the agreement' would be laughable if it wasn't so sad. I don't know if George didn't know what was actually going on or if he has just caught the fake news bug but there was no agreement to sign. The pre-construction phase was up and running and by the time I took office, the cost of building an arena was £75 million more than his agreed budget. Even today, when I have forced the price down, we remain £30 million over the budget.

And we have huge risk. We share the risk of building costs going up... and we share that risk with Buckingham Group, an organisation I should add who have been good partners and who continue to work with us and handle themselves with dignity and professionalism. These are the qualities mayors all over the world are looking for in partners.

What we have to confront is there are very difficult financial consequences and risk for each option. We have to ask ourselves, what is our attitude to risk. Going forward with Temple Island arena means we have all the risk of a circular relationship between the loan to build the arena and the risk of maintaining an operator and rents.

(SCREEN DIAGRAM)

Of course we have looked at how we could get an arena built with private money, on Temple island or elsewhere. Of course, a private sector arena, transferring all the risk to the private sector and away from the tax payer in the name of protecting public services, is the best course of action.

And so much for the smears and insults ...they simply don't stack up. They say more about those calling the smears, than they do about me or anyone at Bristol City Council. Allegations that we are doing anyone a favour is ridiculous. Any private sector organisation who wants to invest £100million of their own money and take all the risk on an at-best marginal proposition is welcome but rather than insult them, we should applaud anyone ready to give it a go. And we will fully test the market, if we don't proceed with the arena today.

And so to the alternative uses...

Those who choose to rubbish the KPMG report do so for political gain or to make weak argument. KPMG used all the respected industry standards to come to a conclusion and they did so independently. Anyone who has actually read the report will see the stark and powerful conclusions that are the only take-away's from that report. I commissioned that report because it was obvious that to build the arena was going to be far more expensive and risky than was ever made clear. So I needed to understand, for the good of the city, how much impact the arena would have on jobs and the economy. Having an additional cultural offer is of course welcome but it has to make sense for the city. Jobs and affordable housing are the key challenges for the city so I was keen to have a clear explanation of how the arena impacted on these aims. As for cultural impact, employment is cultural impact, homes is cultural impact, not just events.

The report clearly told me ...that an alternative use was far better. The arena brought fewer jobs and most jobs in arenas around the country are temporary and minimum wage. A mixed use site, including a conference centre would blow away the arena for jobs and create a stronger tax base and economic output for the city.

Jobs and affordable homes are the key values for the delivery of my administration. I will prioritise them.

Looking at the facts, the greater impact on jobs and the city economy – more than 3x as many in a mixed use development and £500 million more economic output, it is obvious where the facts lead us.

The only questions that matter are the best use of council tax payers money and the best use of Temple Island land, jobs and the long term stability of the city's economy and the council's finances ... I will shortly hand back to Craig Cheney to take the decision on the land use.

Before I do that, I will invite cabinet members to comment....

Hi all,

I have received a odd email from [REDACTED] re Bristol Arena.

He claims to be in contact with Harvey Goldsmith - organiser of Live Aid with Sir Bob - who says he has spoken with a "global arena operator" who is willing to privately back an arena on Temple Island.

[REDACTED] is urging Marvin to contact him to find out more details.

That is literally all I know at this moment - I have gone to Fear to ask for more info.

Would it be possible to get a comment from either the council or Marvin on this one?

I am heading in to the office late today (Tues) to catch up on sleep. Please can you forward any response to [Redacted], [Redacted] and [Redacted] (all cc'd in) as they will be on desk. My deadline is asap!

Hi [Redacted]

Further to your query below Marvin's asked me to send the following on to you:

Marvin Rees, Mayor of Bristol said: "I had agreed to attend scrutiny until councillors called for a Full Council meeting on the same day, introducing a new time pressure which requires preparation. Council officers are open to attending scrutiny wherever this is possible, although commitments such as pre-existing holidays mean not everyone can attend short-notice, previously unscheduled items.

"Scrutiny sets its own work programme and is responsible for resourcing the amount of work that it chooses to take on. It has already spent nearly 10 hours on the arena and one of its commissions was briefed on the housing company proposals. The Chair has chosen to be ambitious in scope and impose additional items on his meeting. That's up to him, but it comes with the need to dedicate time to reading the papers. Because of the Bank Holiday weekend members have had longer to review the papers than normal and will have had well over a week. I'm not prepared to delay major decisions just to enable unplanned scrutiny items to move at a leisurely pace."

Many thanks

Hi REDACTED and [Redacted],

I hope you are both well?

I've just had a message from Geoff Gollop who is kicking off about scrutiny.

He claims OSMB have not been given enough time to scrutinise the 15 items on the agenda ahead of cabinet on Tuesday.

In particular he claims the Arena, Bristol Energy and Bristol Housing Co are "complex and controversial" and need a lot of time spent on them.

He says councillors have not been given enough time to read all the papers and is frustrated that Marvin and senior officers won't be available to attend the meeting.

He claims Marvin holds the scrutiny process in "contempt".

Would it be possible to get a response to this?

My deadline is 5pm.

Best wishes,

Hi [Redacted]

Lots of items have exempt content but whether or not it goes in to an exempt session depends on what needs discussing. The main one which is mostly exempt is the BE Operational Plan.

In all cases we only clear the Chamber where necessary and everyone gets to come back to hear the decision.

Cheers

Another day, another Arena story I'm afraid.

Arena Island Ltd have with a statement to say they are "concerned" with the "apparent bias" and "favouritism" shown to YTL in the FoI docs.

Would the council/Marvin comment on this, or should I just use the existing statement?

My deadline for this piece is midday.

Also, I see on the register of interests that Marvin met with YTL on July 12.
Can you confirm this was in Kuala Lumpur and at YTL's expense?

Is it possible to find out what this meeting was about? Did Marvin stay in KL overnight? How often is the register of interests updated?

My deadline for this piece is 3pm.

Arena Island Ltd have with a statement to say they are "concerned" with the "apparent bias" and "favouritism" shown to YTL in the FoI docs.

Would the council/Marvin comment on this, or should I just use the existing statement?

My deadline for this piece is midday.

Also, I see on the register of interests that Marvin met with YTL on July 12.
Can you confirm this was in Kuala Lumpur and at YTL's expense?

Is it possible to find out what this meeting was about? Did Marvin stay in KL overnight? How often is the register of interests updated?

My deadline for this piece is 3pm.

Hi [Redacted],

We have tracked down an email question to the Bristol Road Safety Team from a Forensic Collision Investigator with the Avon and Somerset Police.

The project team passed the following back to the road safety team on 4 February 2018. I do not have a record of when that email was subsequently passed on to the Investigator.

“During the course of the avtm works, the Ashton road overbridge depicted in the below mentioned picture [that the Investigator sent to the Council] has never been closed; neither has the footbridge leading off the A370 Brunel Way overbridge. This footbridge formed an intrinsic part of the pedestrian diversion route whilst the footpath in Ashton Gate Underpass was closed.

As stated in my previous correspondence, the only closures in place at the time of the accident was the footpath in Ashton Gate underpass & the staircase(s) leading down to the same. This is shown on “Forest Traffic signals DWG SBBB01/0004TMA01”.

The pedestrian closure was been in place since approximately May 2015 & was subsequently removed on the 1st December 2017.”

Kind regards,

Hi [Redacted],

Can I speak to you about this please?

<https://www.bristolpost.co.uk/news/bristol-news/brake-crash-drive-nathan-jenkins-1966880>

We were told at the inquest yesterday the road under the flyover had been closed for MetroBus works for about two years until December 2017 when it was reopened days after Nathan died.

Can you let me know if that was the case and if any work was going on on November 24/25/26 last year? I understand Karin Smyth is speaking to your office about it as well.

The sum due from each BID Levy payer will vary due to the operating rules for each BID but currently ranges from 0.75% to 2.50% of the rateable value of the property.

There were eight summonses listed in respect of BIDs for the hearing on 22nd August 2018. Six were paid and one was withdrawn prior to the hearing, with one liability order granted for the City Centre BID. Where a summons is issued a business will incur additional costs of £94.00 charged by the council and £0.50 costs charged by the Magistrates Court.

Hi there BCC team!

hope you are all well.

This might not be something that you feel the need to comment on, but it's about a council park, so i thought I would share with you - any response gratefully received as ever.

Last evening, at around 5.45pm, a young woman called REDACTED, from Westbury-on-Trym, was walking the family dog REDACTED up the zig-zag path to the castle on the Blaise Estate. The dog ran ahead and she found it had found a big pile of raisins behind a bench.

Raisins cause liver failure in dogs (no, I didn't know that either) and the dog is now spending 48 hours in the dog hospital, although it will pull through.

REDACTED said it was a lot of raisins, too many to scoop up with two hands together, was how she described it. She cleared it up and got the dog home.

There was nothing else around to suggest it was dropped accidentally: other food, wrappers, packaging etc, and it looked as if it had been placed there deliberately.

So I have two questions - the first is to simply get a response to this, and secondly to wonder whether the Parks team have had any similar instances or reports of this kind of thing happening?

Kind regards

Subject: Bristol Live query - graffiti on Metrobus bridge

Hi there,

It's REDACTED here, from Bristol Live.

Earlier this week, Bristol 24/7 reported the removal of graffiti on the new M2 Metrobus was "not a priority" for them or the council.

They issued a statement, which can be viewed here: <https://www.bristol247.com/news-and-features/news/graffiti-removal-not-a-priority-for-metrobus/>

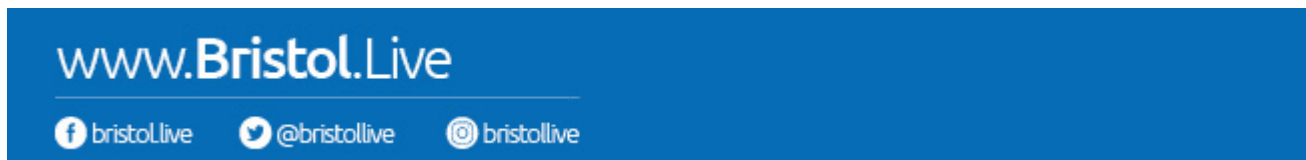

There isn't anything from the council, however, and I just wanted to check if there was a reason for this or if the council would in fact like to comment?

I appreciate it's a Friday afternoon but if there is a comment you would like to send, can you please ensure this is sent to my newsdesk (bristolpostnews@localworld.co.uk).

Hi REDACTED and colleagues

With apologies for missing your deadline – and thanks for carrying Council's previous comment in your latest piece – here is a brief response re the travellers at the MetroBus M2 site. We are expecting them to leave the area in the coming days

A spokesperson for Bristol City Council said:

"We are working with the police to agree the best course of legal action. In the meantime police officers are carrying out regular patrols of the route to enable driver training for the new m2 service to continue as planned."

Hope you're able to update the piece

Ok well I know we had a conversation a few weeks ago about this but I see no reason not to go ahead with the story.

If the council wishes to comment on the court case feel free to send me a line. Likely to be published by end of play today.

Thanks

Hello [Redacted] I hope you are well.

With regards to the conversation we had a few weeks back about the pallets of chicken that was ordered to be destroyed by the courts under request from the city council, you said it was part of a wider national investigation.

Is it part of this news which came out today?

<https://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-45371852>

Hello a strange request but sounds very interesting. Found that the city council has applied and been granted permission by Bristol Magistrates to destroy 13 pallets of frozen chicken thighs belonging to a company. (attached)

I was just hoping to get the back story to this and why this has come about. Is there someone I can chat to to get all the details?

kind regards

I hope you are well today.

Sarah has forwarded your email to me as she is in a meeting all day. We are aware of the area and are doing extra collections whilst an alternative arrangement is agreed. In terms of a comment for your story please see below;

“We were instructed to remove the bins from private property. Bristol City Council are looking in to a satisfactory resolution. In the meantime we will continue to carry out extra collections to assist with keeping the area clean and clear.”

I hope that covers your query, if there's anything else please just let me know,

Hi both,

I am doing a story about a huge pile of rubbish that has snowballed in Bell Lane, Bristol city centre, after the communal bins for the flats were apparently removed on July, 20. A resident has CCTV of this.

As you can see the pile is pretty vast, and residents say there is also human faeces and dead pigeons in amongst it.

Picture below:

If you could provide me with a statement from Bristol Waste about why the bins were removed and about if/when this will be cleared that would be great.

My deadline is 4pm.

Best,

Council's Cabinet is being asked to give the go ahead for work to start on a new housing development that will include the council sale on the private market for the first time.

Permission for the Alderman Moores site in Ashton Vale was given in May 2018 and Cabinet are now being asked to approve the funds and contract which would allow work to start on site.

Given the final go ahead the site would be a mixed development providing 133 new homes.

The development would deliver 40% affordable homes for the city, all of which would be social rented council homes.

A number of the new homes constructed would be sold, with the proceeds reinvested to support the funding of the construction of new

Under the plans, the council's Housing Delivery Team would be developing the site, which would be known as Ashton Rise, in part of the city.

For the first time the council has built houses for sale on the private market. These new homes would form part of the council's plan to increase the supply of new homes in the city, and in particular to help address the need for additional affordable homes.

The Housing Policy is set to be established to support the site, which would see a percentage of the houses allocated to people already living in the city.

The council has set out the commitment of building 2,000 new homes – 800 affordable – a year by 2020. As part of this commitment, the council at numbers, but also at the quality of housing and communities created.

we recognise that to achieve our targets, we have to do things differently, and that is why Cabinet is being asked to consider this proposal. This would be the first time we would be using this model of building homes for sale on the open market, and we are hoping this can enable our new housing company to deliver more housing for the whole city.

to achieve these ambitious goals on our own, and that is why we are working with a range of partners and organisations to make a real difference to the city.

Quality remains a top priority for us. We are not just building houses, we are trying to build quality homes and create communities where people can thrive.”

Once the council approve the plans for the Alderman Moores site, work could begin on site in October.

City Council Deputy MD of Willmott Dixon Wales and West, added: “This is a defining moment for the city of Bristol and the Council’s housing strategy. Considerable care and attention has been given to ensuring that the proposals for Ashton Rise will facilitate the creation of a thriving community, enhancing the local landscape and providing quality new homes, designed to suit the needs of local residents.

The excitement about this particular development, and we look forward to delivering this fantastic scheme over the coming months.

This is Phase 3 of the council’s New Build Housing Programme, which supports the ambition of the Mayor and the council to increase the number of new homes in the city.

As part of the new build housing scheme are built on a ‘fabric first’ basis which will result in extremely energy efficient properties with household utility bills dramatically reduced.

All of the sites that form part of the scheme make use of land owned by the local authority, with a particular focus on derelict, brownfield land to be brought back into use such as former garages and council depots and other council buildings.

The council has completed 81 new council homes to date since the start of this programme in 2014, with a further 64 council homes over four sites under construction.

The council’s team are also about to start work on Phase 4 of the programme, which will see a further eleven sites brought forward, ready for development between 2019-21 to allow the rolling programme to continue.

To date with the developments visit www.bristol.gov.uk/newcouncilhomes

Stakeholders:

The Alderman Moores site is owned by the council and held within the control of the HRA. Council approval was obtained in March 2017 to enter into a Development Agreement with Willmott Dixon (WD) to secure a satisfactory planning consent for the proposed development. Under the new build programme the average blended cost of constructing council homes is estimated at £170k per home. By adopting a shared equity arrangement for this development this cost is reduced to an average of £88,600 per home.

Hi REDACTED,

Please see a comment below on the Central Library.

many thanks,

[Redacted]

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "The hours at the Central Library were reduced in April 2016 following the agreement by the council's September 2015 Cabinet to reduce all library opening hours by 25%. This was a compromise that enabled us to keep all of Bristol's libraries open.

“We would like to return to a seven day service for the Central Library but this would have cost implications and we still have to operate the service within the same budget. We have taken on board the feedback from customers and staff and we will continue to consider our options.”

Hi there BCC press team

I'm doing a follow up story to the article about the imminent launch of the M2 Metrobus.
Can you confirm that the 505 bus from Long Ashton park and ride to Southmead Hospital, via Jacob Wells Road is also going to be scrapped, like the 903 park and ride bus is?

Kind regards

Hi [Redacted],

Sorry to be a pain, I've got a quick question about St Anne's.

At cabinet in July Paul Smith said the shelter would be kept open throughout the year and not just between October and March - <https://www.bristolpost.co.uk/news/bristol-news/bristol-first-24-hour-homeless-1745212>

However, in the statement you provided today says the shelters will only be open during the winter.

Can I ask which one is correct? On 20 August 2018 at 13:29, [Redacted] <[\[Redacted\]@reachplc.com](mailto:[Redacted]@reachplc.com)> wrote:

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: “We were awarded funding from central Government in June to support homeless people in the city. We aim to use a portion of this to set up a new shelter for rough sleepers in Bristol in the building known currently as St Anne’s House.

“We do acknowledge that the tight turn-around time on this project has had an impact on our ability to engage with the community. The reason for the short time scale is because the government has made the funding available to be used for this winter. This is so we can have a meaningful impact on reducing rough sleeping in the city by March 2019.

“Engaging with the local community is very important to us, and the first community liaison meeting at St Anne’s House was attended by 90 people and a second meeting will be held today (Monday August 20). Officers have also been out to visit residents and representatives local businesses.

“St Mungo’s, who will be responsible for running the shelter should planning permission be granted, has set up a newsletter for local residents, and the first edition was hand-delivered to around 200 surrounding homes last week. St Mungo’s also plan to set up an email mailing list for newsletter updates and we will continue to use social media and hold engagement events if the shelter is awarded planning permission.

“There is also a formal consultation taking place about the planning consent application which closes on August 24.

“It is important to note that the planning application is proposing to use St Anne’s House as a winter shelter on an interim basis for the next two winters until March 2020. After this period the longer term use for the site/building will be decided by Bristol City Council.

“If approved, it would provide much-needed additional capacity for the city’s shelter programme which currently stands at 65 beds.”

Residents can email BristolShelter@mungos.org for any additional information.

You can feed back formally to the planning application by following the link on the Bristol City Council website:

Hi [Redacted],

I hope you are well?

I have had a call from a St Annes resident who wants to remain anonymous.

He is claiming the council has made no attempts to contact local residents about plans for the new homeless shelter in the area.

He has just found out there is a public meeting being held this afternoon, but has accused the council of being 'underhand' in its attempts to push the application through without listening to local residents.

Would it be possible to get a comment on this one?

My deadline is 3pm.

Best wishes,

Hi [Redacted],

Sorry to be a pain, I've got a quick question about St Anne's.

At cabinet in July Paul Smith said the shelter would be kept open throughout the year and not just between October and March - <https://www.bristolpost.co.uk/news/bristol-news/bristol-first-24-hour-homeless-1745212>

However, in the statement you provided today says the shelters will only be open during the winter.

Can I ask which one is correct?

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "We were awarded funding from central Government in June to support homeless people in the city. We aim to use a portion of this to set up a new shelter for rough sleepers in Bristol in the building known currently as St Anne's House.

"We do acknowledge that the tight turn-around time on this project has had an impact on our ability to engage with the community. The reason for the short time scale is because the government has made the funding available to be used for this winter. This is so we can have a meaningful impact on reducing rough sleeping in the city by March 2019.

"Engaging with the local community is very important to us, and the first community liaison meeting at St Anne's House was attended by 90 people and a second meeting will be held today (Monday August 20). Officers have also been out to visit residents and representatives local businesses.

"St Mungo's, who will be responsible for running the shelter should planning permission be granted, has set up a newsletter for local residents, and the first edition was hand-delivered to around 200 surrounding homes last week. St Mungo's also plan to set up an email mailing list for newsletter updates and we will continue to use social media and hold engagement events if the shelter is awarded planning permission.

"There is also a formal consultation taking place about the planning consent application which closes on August 24.

"It is important to note that the planning application is proposing to use St Anne's House as a winter shelter on an interim basis for the next two winters until March 2020. After this period the longer term use for the site/building will be decided by Bristol City Council.

"If approved, it would provide much-needed additional capacity for the city's shelter programme which currently stands at 65 beds."

Residents can email BristolShelter@mungos.org for any additional information.

You can feed back formally to the planning application by following the link on the Bristol City Council website:

Hi [Redacted],

I hope you are well?

I have had a call from a St Annes resident who wants to remain anonymous.

He is claiming the council has made no attempts to contact local residents about plans for the new homeless shelter in the area.

He has just found out there is a public meeting being held this afternoon, but has accused the council of being 'underhand' in its attempts to push the application through without listening to local residents.

Would it be possible to get a comment on this one?

My deadline is 3pm.

Best wishes,

Hi [Redacted],

Thanks for getting back to me.

I'm working on a story about a development at Silverthorne Lane, which includes offices, houses student accommodation and a 1,600 place school.

I was wondering what the council's involvement is with the site? It looks to be in the Temple Quarter Enterprise Zone and I'd have thought the council would be promoting development around there.

It also looks like CPOs may need to be carried out because businesses currently use the site, is that something the council has to sanction?

Looking to pull something together for close of play tomorrow.

Thanks

Hi [Redacted],

I hope you are well?

I have had a call from a St Annes resident who wants to remain anonymous.

He is claiming the council has made no attempts to contact local residents about plans for the new homeless shelter in the area.

He has just found out there is a public meeting being held this afternoon, but has accused the council of being 'underhand' in its attempts to push the application through without listening to local residents.

Would it be possible to get a comment on this one?

My deadline is 3pm.

Best wishes,

Hi [Redacted],

Sorry to be a pain, I've got a quick question about St Anne's.

At cabinet in July Paul Smith said the shelter would be kept open throughout the year and not just between October and March - <https://www.bristolpost.co.uk/news/bristol-news/bristol-first-24-hour-homeless-1745212>

However, in the statement you provided today says the shelters will only be open during the winter.

Can I ask which one is correct?

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: “We were awarded funding from central Government in June to support homeless people in the city. We aim to use a portion of this to set up a new shelter for rough sleepers in Bristol in the building known currently as St Anne’s House.

“We do acknowledge that the tight turn-around time on this project has had an impact on our ability to engage with the community. The reason for the short time scale is because the government has made the funding available to be used for this winter. This is so we can have a meaningful impact on reducing rough sleeping in the city by March 2019.

“Engaging with the local community is very important to us, and the first community liaison meeting at St Anne’s House was attended by 90 people and a second meeting will be held today (Monday August 20). Officers have also been out to visit residents and representatives local businesses.

“St Mungo’s, who will be responsible for running the shelter should planning permission be granted, has set up a newsletter for local residents, and the first edition was hand-delivered to around 200 surrounding homes last week. St Mungo’s also plan to set up an email mailing list for newsletter updates and we will continue to use social media and hold engagement events if the shelter is awarded planning permission.

“There is also a formal consultation taking place about the planning consent application which closes on August 24.

“It is important to note that the planning application is proposing to use St Anne’s House as a winter shelter on an interim basis for the next two winters until March 2020. After this period the longer term use for the site/building will be decided by Bristol City Council.

“If approved, it would provide much-needed additional capacity for the city’s shelter programme which currently stands at 65 beds.”

Hi [Redacted]

Yes, very complex - fully appreciate the complexities for yourselves.

He's not a well man either, really, and this is making him worse.

So yes, I'm going to Second Step also, and the police. He's also got on to Karin Smyth too, I understand.

What would be really helpful, even if you're limited in what you can say on the record, would be to get confirmation for me that his assessment of the situation in terms of applications made, appeals etc is about right.

It's obviously always good to double check in these things.

Looking to run something this week or early next week. Not 3pm today.... fear not.

Kind regards

Hi there BCC press team.

I am doing an article about the case of REDACTED.

He is a person living in a Second Step flat in REDACTED

He has had long term mental health issues, psychosis ultimately caused by smoking high-strength cannabis in his younger years.

The property he now lives in is a building and communal space shared with other people, many of whom currently smoke high strength cannabis.

He says the smell is quite literally driving him mad, affecting his physical and mental health.

His doctors have asked for him to be moved.

I understand he was turned down, and appealed and was turned down again?

He says he reports the issues to the police, and they say go to Second Step. Second Step tell him to report it to the police.

He says Second Step tell him to ask for rehousing from the council. The council tell him it is Second Step's responsibility.

He has medical professionals' reports and letters telling him he should be moved, but he's still there.

Can he be moved?

Kind regards

Morning,

I have been sent several pictures of the public toilets in Blackboy Hill, which are very very dirty.

The member of the public sent them in because they have the need to use public toilets particularly this one and note that they have not been cleaned in well over a week, despite them needing a thorough clean for anyone to be able to go to the toilet in there.

I include one of the several photos we have been given permission to use.

Would you be able to provide a comment about the state of these toilets and why they have been left in such a state?

Also, if you have information about how often the public toilets - that are still open - are cleaned?

We would like to publish as soon as possible because it was sent to us over the weekend.

Best,

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "We were awarded funding from central Government in June to support homeless people in the city. We aim to use a portion of this to set up a new shelter for rough sleepers in Bristol in the building known currently as St Anne's House.

"We do acknowledge that the tight turn-around time on this project has had an impact on our ability to engage with the community. The reason for the short time scale is because the government has made the funding available to be used for this winter. This is so we can have a meaningful impact on reducing rough sleeping in the city by March 2019.

"Engaging with the local community is very important to us, and the first community liaison meeting at St Anne's House was attended by 90 people and a second meeting will be held today (Monday August 20). Officers have also been out to visit residents and representatives of local businesses.

"St Mungo's, who will be responsible for running the shelter should planning permission be granted, has set up a newsletter for local residents, and the first edition was hand-delivered to around 200 surrounding homes last week. St Mungo's also plan to set up an email mailing list for newsletter updates and we will continue to use social media and hold engagement events if the shelter is awarded planning permission.

"There is also a formal consultation taking place about the planning consent application which closes on August 24.

"It is important to note that the planning application is proposing to use St Anne's House as a winter shelter on an interim basis for the next two winters until March 2020. After this period the longer term use for the site/building will be decided by Bristol City Council.

"If approved, it would provide much-needed additional capacity for the city's shelter programme which currently stands at 65 beds."

Hi [Redacted],

I hope you are well?

I have had a call from a St Annes resident who wants to remain anonymous.

He is claiming the council has made no attempts to contact local residents about plans for the new homeless shelter in the area.

He has just found out there is a public meeting being held this afternoon, but has accused the council of being 'underhand' in its attempts to push the application through without listening to local residents.

Would it be possible to get a comment on this one?

My deadline is 3pm.

Best wishes,

Hi [Redacted]

Yes, very complex - fully appreciate the complexities for yourselves.

He's not a well man either, really, and this is making him worse.

So yes, I'm going to Second Step also, and the police. He's also got on to Karin Smyth too, I understand.

What would be really helpful, even if you're limited in what you can say on the record, would be to get confirmation for me that his assessment of the situation in terms of applications made, appeals etc is about right.

It's obviously always good to double check in these things.

Looking to run something this week or early next week. Not 3pm today.... fear not.

Kind regards

Can I confirm you are also talking to Second Step as main providers?

Hi there BCC press team.

I am doing an article about the case of REDACTED.

He is a person living in a Second Step flat in REDACTED

He has had long term mental health issues, psychosis ultimately caused by smoking high-strength cannabis in his younger years.

The property he now lives in is a building and communal space shared with other people, many of whom currently smoke high strength cannabis.

He says the smell is quite literally driving him mad, affecting his physical and mental health.

His doctors have asked for him to be moved.

I understand he was turned down, and appealed and was turned down again?

He says he reports the issues to the police, and they say go to Second Step. Second Step tell him to report it to the police.

He says Second Step tell him to ask for rehousing from the council. The council tell him it is Second Step's responsibility.

He has medical professionals' reports and letters telling him he should be moved, but he's still there.

Can he be moved?

Kind regards

Hi REDACTED,

Please find a quote below about our use of Glyphosate.

Thanks,

[Redacted]

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "Glyphosate has been fully licensed for use in the UK and is therefore is considered an approved, safe product. As with all chemicals, the council's policy is to reduce use where it can and we would always use the minimum amount possible, applied in a safe way.

"In order to explore reducing the use of chemical weed control, the council recently carried out some research into alternative solutions, and did not find any that were cost effective or did not have adverse environmental impacts. As a result of this, there are no current plans to use alternative methods."

Hi [Redacted]

Yes, very complex - fully appreciate the complexities for yourselves.
He's not a well man either, really, and this is making him worse.
So yes, I'm going to Second Step also, and the police. He's also got on to Karin Smyth too, I understand.
What would be really helpful, even if you're limited in what you can say on the record, would be to get confirmation for me that his assessment of the situation in terms of applications made, appeals etc is about right.
It's obviously always good to double check in these things.
Looking to run something this week or early next week. Not 3pm today.... fear not.
Kind regards

Hi REDACTED,

This seems like a complex situation, so I am not sure what we are going to be able to say publicly about the individual's personal circumstances.

Can you let me know when you are looking to run this, as I think it is going to take a bit of time to co-ordinate a response.

Can I confirm you are also talking to Second Step as main providers?

Thanks,

Hi there BCC press team.

I am doing an article about the case of REDACTED.

He is a person living in a Second Step flat in REDACTED

He has had long term mental health issues, psychosis ultimately caused by smoking high-strength cannabis in his younger years.

The property he now lives in is a building and communal space shared with other people, many of whom currently smoke high strength cannabis.

He says the smell is quite literally driving him mad, affecting his physical and mental health.

His doctors have asked for him to be moved.

I understand he was turned down, and appealed and was turned down again?

He says he reports the issues to the police, and they say go to Second Step. Second Step tell him to report it to the police.

He says Second Step tell him to ask for rehousing from the council. The council tell him it is Second Step's responsibility.

He has medical professionals' reports and letters telling him he should be moved, but he's still there.

Can he be moved?

Kind regards

REDACTED

Hi REDACTED,

Please see our responses below.

Many thanks,

[Redacted]

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "Our Streetwise team visited the site yesterday, but there was no one there. They left a rough sleeper form advising the group how they can access help and reminding them that we cannot allow people to live in our parks and green spaces. Streetwise will attempt to go back and see them again this week. The St Mungo's Outreach team have also visited the group.

"We are currently consulting on our approach to rough sleeping encampments in the city. The council has a duty of care to everyone living in the city and does not believe that sleeping on the streets is a safe, long term option. To find out more, or to take part in the consultation, please visit <http://www.bristol.gov.uk/roughsleeping>. "

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "This group is made up of a few of the vehicles that were moved from Horfield Common. Our traveller team visited them today and reminded them of the offer to access our traveller site.

"The group turned this offer down, and the police will now be able to use their powers to move them on."

Hi [Redacted],

Sorry for the delay. See response below. Could you confirm you have received this?

Thanks,

[Redacted]

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: “We are always deeply saddened to hear about the death of someone who has been sleeping on the streets.

“Rough sleeping is dangerous, and people sleeping on the streets face danger to their physical and mental health as well as risk of assault. In the worst cases, this can lead to long term health problems and even death.

“Serious Incident Reporting forms part of the monitoring of commissioned services and includes notifying the council of incidents relating to Health and Safety, including the death of individuals.

“The council often relies on details passed on from providers, so dates and times of death may vary from those recorded by the coroner as information can sometimes be second hand. For the same reason, names may occasionally be misspelled when they are reported, and people often use aliases rather than the names on their birth certificates. The coroner’s office does not formally notify us of outcomes.

“A meeting has been arranged with the Public Health team to review deaths for the last financial year, put in place a formal multi-agency process and set up a six-month review for any recorded deaths between April and September this year.

“The council has a duty of care to everyone living in the city and in Bristol we are working together to try and end homelessness through both short term solutions and long term change. However, we acknowledge that homelessness is a complex problem that cannot be solved overnight.

“People turn down offers of support, or are not able to maintain a place in temporary accommodation, for a number of reasons – we appreciate that each person’s situation is different. Part of supporting people is often about challenging them to take up an offer that is not always their first choice.

“If anyone is concerned about someone rough sleeping please make a referral to StreetLink.org.uk This information is passed onto our outreach team who will then make contact.”

Hi [Redacted],

Thanks for speaking with me. A short time ago I put in an FoI regarding the homeless people who have died in Bristol that was recorded by Bristol City Council.

I'd like to know how the records are compiled and why. Can you also find out why some of the records were different from the coroner's official record of inquest, including date of death and spelling of names.

Can I ask what this record is used for please?
And how the council is working to ensure another homeless person does not die in Bristol.

Thanks. I'm hoping to publish tomorrow morning, so please let me know if that's possible.

Subject: 51 homeless deaths

Hi [Redacted],

Thanks for speaking with me. A short time ago I put in an FoI regarding the homeless people who have died in Bristol that was recorded by Bristol City Council.

I'd like to know how the records are compiled and why. Can you also find out why some of the records were different from the coroner's official record of inquest, including date of death and spelling of names.

Can I ask what this record is used for please?
And how the council is working to ensure another homeless person does not die in Bristol.

Thanks. I'm hoping to publish tomorrow morning, so please let me know if that's possible.

Regards

Hi REDACTED / all

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "We have no knowledge of this alleged offer and do not appear to have been contacted by any of the people mentioned. If they have a serious proposal we would expect to receive it directly through normal channels."

Hi all,

I have received a odd email from [REDACTED] re Bristol Arena.

He claims to be in contact with [REDACTED] - organiser of Live Aid with Sir Bob - who says he has spoken with a "global arena operator" who is willing to privately back an arena on Temple Island.

[REDACTED] is urging Marvin to contact him to find out more details.

That is literally all I know at this moment - I have gone to [REDACTED] to ask for more info. Would it be possible to get a comment from either the council or Marvin on this one?

I am heading in to the office late today (Tues) to catch up on sleep. Please can you forward any response to [Redacted], [Redacted] and [Redacted] (all cc'd in) as they will be on desk. My deadline is asap!

Hot off the press....

On the AIL statement:

A Bristol City Council spokesperson said: "We have worked actively with all stakeholders involved in the project; meeting or contacting AIL on a number of occasions at a senior level as well as maintaining ties at an operational level.

"We have worked with objectivity and impartiality in considering the future use of Temple Island. Our actions reflect normal business practice, particularly given the context of YTL's proposal being at an earlier stage of development and requiring an understanding of the details."

On the KL questions:

A spokesperson for Bristol City Council said: "The Mayor visited Kuala Lumpur in July as part of a West of England trade delegation, participating in an investment seminar and reception at the British High Commissioner's residence, where they were promoting the City Leap Energy prospectus and other key investment projects for the city.

"One of the four meetings held during the visit was a working lunch hosted and paid for by YTL, at which all delegates and officers were present."

Thanks
